

Pursue your dreams and projects in France !

Why choose France to Study and Conduct Research?

Welcome to France! Are you ready to embark on a life-changing journey?

◆ Academic Excellence

Numerous French universities and Grandes Écoles are placed highly in the Times Higher Education, the Financial Times ranking, the QS and the Shanghai ranking. Studying in France means benefiting from this recognition.

With 13 Fields Medals, France is second in the world in mathematics. It has 65 Nobel Prize winners, including Marie Curie, the first woman to receive a Nobel Prize in Physics in 1903. In 1911 she became the first researcher in the world to obtain a second Prize, this time in Chemistry.

◆ Affordability

International students enjoy the same benefits as French students (healthcare, accommodation, allowance, discounts for cultural events, transport discounts). Subsidies from the French government enable low tuition fees in public universities.

◆ Degrees Taught in English

As of 2024, there are 1700+ programmes taught entirely in English, ranging from Bachelor Degrees to Master's Degrees, as well as short-term summer courses.

◆ Practicality

Gaining work experience, through internships, is part of all degree requirements. As a major global economic player, France puts a strong emphasis on employability. Work permit after your degree is facilitated.

◆ Research & Innovation

France spends 49.5 billion euros on research per year, equal to 2.22% of its GDP. This has enabled the country to achieve its objectives, in particular at an international level, and to attract talented researchers from around the world.

I conducted research on aircraft conceptual design to reduce environmental emissions at Ecole Nationale de l'Aviation Civile (ENAC) in Toulouse.

At ENAC, I observed that French Engineering schools include not only heavy academic aspects based on math and physics, which are emphasized in the American engineering education system, but also a lot of practical information that students need when becoming engineers in the industry.”
